Diversity, Disability & Inclusion
The Diversity, Disability & Inclusions Advisors provide advice, support, referrals and assistance to students who have a condition, and for those with significant responsibilities caring for a person with a condition, that impacts on their study. The service sits within Student Services, all of these student support services are free and can be accessed throughout the year (except during public holidays).
What support is available?

Support is individual and is determined by discussions with the student and takes into account the supporting information/documentation provided. Ideally, this needs to be arranged in advance of the start of each semester. Supports/services available include,

- Support to discuss the functional impact of condition on studies with academic staff
- Access on campus
- Accessible learning materials
- Extensions to course work
- Exam adjustments.

This is not an exhaustive list of support and services, to find out more email inclusion@uq.edu.au

Tutoring, proofreading assessment pieces and personal care are not provided as part of our support, please refer to service and resources offered on page 9, 10 and 11.

Student Access Plan

A SAP is a document outlining the impact a condition has on the student’s capacity to undertake study and reasonable adjustments to be considered. The plan will only note the condition if the student feels comfortable with consenting to disclose. The plan lists reasonable accommodations to be considered for course work (for example, extensions or where a student may have issues with attendance). The plan is shared with Course Coordinators and other relevant teaching staff to support the student. It is designed to open up communication between the student and teaching staff. Plans can be developed for course work, various placements and HDR. Plans are submitted each semester as requested by the student.

Exam Adjustments

Adjustments to exams will depend on the nature of the condition and how it impacts the student. Adjustments can include,

- extra time breaks
- use of computer
- scribe
- ergonomic furniture.

With the exception of unexpected, serious, unavoidable circumstances or injury, exam adjustments need to be in place two weeks before the exam block.

Deferring exams is a separate process and not managed by our service. For information regarding deferring an exam, refer to Deferring an exam on my.UQ.

Mobility Scooter

Students can apply to access a mobility scooter while they are on campus for their classes or study related activities. They are returned daily to scooter cages, located throughout the St Lucia campus. Scooters cannot be taken/stored off campus.

Transcription

The program is available to students who have difficulty taking notes in lectures as a result of various types and degrees of sensory, physical or other disabilities. This service cannot be used as a substitute for attendance.

Assistive Technology

Selected equipment is available for use by students who have a disability to aid academic access. Some items of equipment are located at specific venues on campus for use by eligible students. Other items are transportable and available for loan to individual students.

Physical access arrangements

For students who require specific access to classes, arrangements can be made to ensure classes are in appropriate locations, where possible.
Inherent requirements and reasonable adjustments

Inherent requirements

Refers to key learning outcomes of a course or program of study a student should expect to demonstrate an understanding of. These are demonstrated through a variety of assessments, which may include assignments, exams and practicals.

In assessing whether an adjustment to a course or program in which a student is enrolled, or proposes to be enrolled, is reasonable, the University is entitled to maintain the academic integrity of the course or program, and other requirements or components that are inherent in or essential to its nature (Disability Standards for Education 2005).

Students can refer to their Electronic Course Profiles to get an understanding of what the inherent requirements are for their particular courses.

Reasonable adjustment

An adjustment is a reasonable adjustment unless providing it would impose an unjustifiable hardship to the educator or institution, or involve changing/compromising the inherent requirements of a program of study.

Reasonable adjustments are designed to promote an equitable opportunity for students with a condition that impacts on their study; it should not unfairly advantage them or disadvantage other students.

Who is able to access support?

Any current student (domestic and International) who has a condition that impacts on their study, either full time or part time, is able to access support. Students can be enrolled as an undergraduate, post-graduate, through UQ College or through Institute of Continuing & TESOL Education. Conditions can be temporary or ongoing.

Conditions can include,

- Physical
- Sensory
- Mental health
- Developmental disorders
- Learning disorders
- Neurological disorder
- Chronic health conditions
- Temporary injury
- Individuals undertaking a carer’s role (i.e. caring for an individual with a significant physical or mental health condition).

Process for accessing support

Students are invited to book an initial 1 hour appointment with a DDIA. Due to high demand for appointments before and early semester, as well as exam period in late semester it is encouraged that students to book appointments early. Students are encouraged to bring their supporting documentation/medical information to this appointment.

Bookings can be made online at uq.edu.au/student-services/disability

1. Appointment made by student for consultation (phone or in person) with DDIA
2. Assessment at appointment with student
   - Review impact of condition and documents
   - Discuss support options
   - Refer to course requirements/ECP
3. Develop support
   - Based on assessment
   - Reviewed by DDIA Manager
   - Input from academic staff, if necessary
4. Submit/ request support.
5. Review as required each semester.
To ensure we are able to provide appropriate support, up-to-date medical documentation is required. Reasonable adjustments cannot be put into place until appropriate documentation has been provided. Students can have their registered health professional complete a medical form or alternative documentation can be provided.

It is important documentation is,

- dated
- provides information on the diagnosis (present symptoms and whether the condition is mild, moderate or severe in nature; and if it is long or short term)
- impact the diagnosis has on study
- recommended adjustments
- qualifications of the appropriate treating professional is also required.

In order to provide a high standard of continued support, documentation is regularly reviewed. Depending on your condition, you may be asked for new documentation on an on-going basis.

For more specific information on conditions, refer to the table below.
